

I think that relaxing the rules on television station ownership is a bad idea.

In 1996, when the first bill was signed by President Clinton, the four major news networks didn't cover the issue at all. I'm afraid that if the rules are relaxed any further, it will become impossible to maintain any semblance of freedom of the press.

Big business has already been allowed to run rampant enough in this country. Give the airways back to the people!